Personal Living Preferences

Before selecting colors or buying new furniture, take a moment to consider how you truly want to live. Your personal preferences form the foundation for all subsequent decisions, helping you create a home that not only looks beautiful but also suits your lifestyle. Think about the atmosphere you desire: Should your home radiate calm and a sense of security or feel lively and inspiring? Do you prefer open, airy spaces or cozy retreats? Perhaps you want to create more order, incorporate better storage solutions, or make certain areas more functional.

Consider your daily routine as well. What activities regularly take place in your rooms? Where do you relax, work, or spend time with your family? Start by jotting down all your wishes without worrying about cost or feasibility. In the next step, you can rank them by importance.

Distinguish between essential needs, important improvements, and additional desires. This creates a clear sense of direction to guide you throughout the entire furnishing process.

Reflect on the following:

- What is currently missing from your home?
- Which rooms or areas would you like to change?
- What kind of atmosphere should your home convey?
- What is essential for your personal well-being?
- Which three living preferences are your top priorities?

Your living preferences are the starting point for your dream interior—because a harmonious home always begins with your personal needs.
